Liberian woman: 'I was humiliated' at the clinic

West Philly. A woman accused by medical staff of having Ebola says Liberians are facing bias because of the Ebola panic.

A Liberian immigrant says she was the victim of discrimination when she was recently diagnosed with Ebola by a local clinic despite having no symptoms.

"I was humiliated," said Roslyn Gray, 47, her voice breaking with emotion.

Gray went to Spectrum Health Clinic on 52nd Street and Haverford Avenue around 3 p.m. on Oct. 20, because her hands were swollen. She later learned it was an allergic reaction to penicillin.

When she saw a doctor, after a few questions, the doctor abruptly ran out of the room, Gray said.

The doctor returned a half hour later, stood in the doorway and told Gray to stay as far away as possible, Gray recalled, as tears began to fall down her face again.

"She said, 'You have to go to the Ebola clinic. You have Ebola,'" Gray recalled.

Gray said the doctor told her she had a temperature of 105. But Gray said she felt no fever and the reading was faulty.

When paramedics came to bring Gray to the UPenn hospital, they found she had no fever, but Spectrum staff — all wearing oxygen masks — insisted that Gray go to the hospital.

Gray was there for eight hours, she said, before she was released with no symptoms.

"Even if somebody has Ebola, they shouldn't be treated like an outcast," Gray said. "I don't blame them for being afraid. But there was a better way to do it."

Spectrum Health Clinic did not respond to requests for comment by press time.

Gray said she was the victim of ongoing discrimination against Liberians in Philadelphia right now.

"We Liberians are attacked in this country right now," she said.

She said there are heard stories that Liberian children have been taunted with names like "Ebola" and "virus" at schools. She also said a Liberian told her he was fired from a new job on the first day due to being Liberian, and Liberians are afraid to seek medical help.

"I have friends with headaches who are afraid to go to the hospital," said Gray's co-worker and friend, Jacob Collins, 29. "Just because you talk on the phone to people in Liberia doesn't mean you have Ebola."

Roslyn Gray, 47, got emotional as she recalled the ordeal she went through after being mistakenly assumed to have the Ebola virus after visiting a clinic with an allergic reaction. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER, METRO

Discrimination?

Liberian Association of Pennsylvania president Dahn Dennis said Liberians who experience discrimination must report it.

- "What we are encouraging people to do is if they see this happening, if this happens to you, come forward, so we can keep track of it," he said.
- School District spokesperson Fernando Gallard said parents can anonymously report bullying of Liberians by reporting the school where it happened.

Strawberry Mansion. Letter claims 32nd Ward election rigged

Twenty-six 32nd Ward committee people signed a letter to Congressman Bob Brady complaining that ward leader Gary Williams was wrongfully placed in office and actually lost the ward leader election to Jimmie Moore.

"It's a grave injustice," said ward chair Lisa Starks, who said two counts of the ballots indicated Moore was the winner after the election in June.

But Williams appealed to the Democratic City Committee and won. Starks said that Williams has refused to provide committee people with funds to pay staff to hand out pamphlets before next week's election. She also said in the past he has not been responsive to voiced community needs.

"We voted for who we voted for and we elected who we elected," Starks said. "We have no idea why Williams won."

Brady, chair of the Democratic City Committee, did not return calls by press time. SAM NEWHOUSE

Video. Philadelphia guard beats prisoner, but prisoner is charged

Prisoner John Steckley looks like he might have been mouthing off as he walked out of the visitors' room at Philadelphia's Curran-Fromhold Correctional Facility, but he appeared to be posing no physical threat to the guard standing at the door. Even so, the guard punched Steckley in the face and then, along with another guard, proceeded to beat him, according to an exclusive report in today's City Paper.

A prison security-camera video obtained by City Paper shows Steckley's hands were at his side when correction officer Tyrone Glover slammed his fist into the inmate's face. Then, after Steckley hit the ground, Glover and another officer struck him multiple times. Steckley tried to defend himself in the Jan. 9 incident. The video does not include audio, so it is not known what words Steckley and Glover exchanged.

Visit Metro.us for more of this story and to see video.
CITY PAPER

Quoted

"I saw this officer punch this inmate. And the officer then got on top of him and pummeled this man six or seven times."
Witness from the prison gym

Steckley isn't the first inmate that Glover appears to have beaten this year. Last month, City Paper reported that multiple visitors from city social service agencies said they watched in horror as a guard severely beat inmate Marcellus Temple in the Curran-Fromhold gym on Sept. 25. Philadelphia Prison System spokesperson Shawn Hawes confirmed that Glover was the guard involved in both incidents. She says the city prison had investigated both incidents, but declined to provide any information about the findings, or say whether Glover was subject to discipline.

Despite video evidence that Glover struck first, Steckley has been criminally charged with assault. The Prison System said that Temple, from the September incident, likely will be charged as well.

The Defender Association of Philadelphia says that outside oversight is necessary, given what it sees as the Prison System's ongoing failure to discipline guards and is calling for the creation of an independent commission.

Cheyney U alum file discrimination suit

A federal lawsuit was filed Wednesday claiming that Cheyney University, a historically black state college, is being left out in the cold due to racism.

"We are seeking parity through equity, to seek a level playing field so we can compete with the 13 traditionally white state institutions," explained attorney Michael Coard, a Cheyney alum who is filing the lawsuit. Coard said the school needs funding to attract new students.

"If you create the type of programs young people are interested in and you have them at Cheyney, then you wouldn't have the problems with low student enrollment and high budget deficit."

Coard mentioned criminal justice, nursing programs and computer technology programs as among Cheyney's goals.

Kenn Marshall, spokesman for the state system of higher education, said the state is working to improve Cheyney.

"The university is developing a new academic plan that will ensure students have access to relevant programs," Marshall said via email. "We are identifying other areas for enhancement within the university such as the university's business and student support services, facilities (including student housing) and technology infrastructure."

Nurse clashes with Maine over Ebola quarantine

Legal challenge.
Lawyers for Hickox said Maine officials would have to get a court order to enforce a quarantine.

Saying she will not be bullied by politicians, a Maine nurse is giving the state an ultimatum: lift her Ebola quarantine by Thursday or she will disregard the restrictions and go to court.

The saga of nurse Kaci Hickox illustrates how states are struggling to protect against the virus without resorting to overzealous and useless precautions or violating civil rights.

Hickox, 33, tested negative for Ebola after returning from treating patients in West Africa. She previously blasted New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie after she was taken from Newark's airport and put in a quarantine tent before being driven to Maine to spend the rest of her 21-day quarantine at her home.

"I truly believe this policy is not scientifically nor constitutionally just, and so I am not going to sit around and be bullied around by politicians and be forced to stay in my home when I am not a risk to the American public," Hickox told NBC.

California announced on Wednesday that people returning from Ebola-affected countries who have had contact with infected patients will be quarantined for 21 days on a case-by-case basis.

At a White House event, President Barack Obama scolded politicians who have sought quarantines or strict travel bans for caving into fears. REUTERS

"If the restrictions placed on me by the state of Maine are not lifted by Thursday morning, I will go to court to fight for my freedom."

Ebola mission

Quarantine-like monitoring approved for US troops

Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel on Wednesday approved a strict, 21-day quarantine-like monitoring period for all U.S. troops returning from the Ebola relief mission in West Africa, the Pentagon said.

Hagel, acting at the recommendation of top military commanders, signed a memo asking for an implementation plan for the monitoring regimen, Rear Admiral John Kirby, the Pentagon press secretary, said in a statement.

TROOPS SUIT UP

Hagel also called for a review of the decision in 45 days to evaluate "whether or not such monitoring should continue based on what we learn and observe from the initial waves of personnel" returning from the West Africa relief mission, Kirby said.

The Pentagon chief's action expanded to all Utroops returning from Ebola-affected countries a policy that was put into place earlier this week by General Ray Odierno, the Army chief of staff. REUTERS

Rocket explosion probed, space station resupplied

Scene. The area around the launch facility was cordoned off on Wednesday and a helicopter circled overhead.

Authorities on Wednesday started investigating what made an unmanned U.S. supply rocket explode in a fireball moments after lifting off from a launch pad in Virginia, destroying supplies and equipment bound for the International Space Station.

The 14-story Antares rocket, built and launched by Orbital Sciences Corp., blasted off from the NASA Wallops Flight Facility on Wallops Island at 6:22 p.m. on Tuesday but burst into flames moments later. It was the first disaster since the National Aeronautics and Space Administration turned to private operators to run cargo to the space station.

The explosion is unlikely to unravel the deal, sources familiar with the situation said. The transaction, which is expected to close this year, was touted by the companies as a $5 billion merger of equals when it was announced.

The rocket that exploded on Tuesday was carrying a Cygnus cargo ship with a 5,000 pound payload for the station, a $100 billion research laboratory owned and operated by 15 nations that orbits about 260 miles above Earth.

The loss of the supply vessel posed no immediate problem for the orbiting station's six crew: two from NASA, one from the European Space Agency and three Russians, officials said.

Russia's Roskosmos space agency said it was ready to help ferry extra U.S. cargo to the space station if NASA requested. REUTERS

"There was no cargo that was absolutely critical to us that was lost on that flight. The crew is in no danger."

DC, Oregon and Alaska to vote on pot legalization

Momentum build. Candidates in the 2016 presidential election might have to take a stand on the issue.

Voters in the capital and two West Coast states will decide in the Nov. 4 elections whether to legalize marijuana, pushing closer to the mainstream a notion that was once consigned to the political fringe.

Ballot initiatives in Oregon and Alaska would set up a network of regulated pot stores, similar to those already operating in Colorado and Washington state. A measure in the District of Columbia would allow possession but not retail sales.

Public opinion on marijuana has shifted sharply in the past several years, and polls indicate more Americans now support legalization than oppose it. Advocates say that, like gay marriage, legal pot is an idea that gains support once people see it in action.

Opponents say legalization will create an aggressive new industry that will profit by marketing an addictive product to teens. REUTERS

OMG! Gadget puts an end to waiting for red lights at traffic intersections

A new gadget gives cyclists the green go-ahead at traffic lights. The Veloloop, an aluminum antenna that makes bikes detectable to traffic sensors at road intersections through a low power circuit using just AAA batteries, means there's no more waiting around at red lights. The California-based co-creator Nat Collins came up with the idea when he realized that only cars were able to trigger magnetic sensors in the roads to turn the light green, while bicycles were left waiting. Keen cyclist Collins explains more about the traffic hack.

New gadget makes bikes detectable. / VELOLOOP, KICKSTARTER

How does the Veloloop work?
The Veloloop starts operating when it detects that the bike has stopped. Because inductive loop sensors run at many different frequencies, the Veloloop first scans the ground to see if there's a sensor present, then it finds what frequency the particular loop is operating at. When it finds the signal, it sends back another signal that triggers the inductive loop sensor, so the traffic light thinks there's a car waiting.

And how long does this process take?
Oh, all this happens in less than a second. The cyclist doesn't need to do anything other than stop the bike near the loop sensor. The red LED goes solid when the Veloloop locks on to the inductive loop sensor's signal, so the cyclist knows that they won't have to do anything more.

Was this idea born out of impatience?
Yes. One day my daughter and I were riding our tandem (two-person) bike and I went through a red light, since I didn't want to wait for a car to trigger the inductive loop sensor for me. My daughter asked, "Dad, why do we go through red lights?" That's when I first thought of an electromagnetic device that could make the loop sensor think there's a car present.

WANISE MARTINEZ, METRO WORLD NEWS

Questions

How long does it last?

Two AAA batteries will last most people well over a year. The hard-anodized aluminum antenna is strong and will last many, many years.

Mouse hunt delays Norwegian flight to NY

Norwegian Air Shuttle, already plagued by costly flight delays on its long-haul routes, was forced to delay a flight to New York by five hours on Tuesday because of a hunt for a mouse in the cockpit.

"The pilots discovered a mouse on flight deck," spokeswoman Charlotte Holmbergh said on Wednesday. "We had to make sure that no cables or wires had been chewed.

"This does not happen very often, but it does happen from time to time."

Norwegian became the only European budget carrier last year to fly long-haul routes, but a string of technical troubles with its new Boeing 787 Dreamliners delayed many of its flights, leaving passengers stranded at airports from Bangkok to Florida.

The airline has since improved its reliability, but it runs its Dreamliners 18 hours a day, five to six hours more than traditional carriers, so even small delays can cause significant schedule disruptions.

"At least the mouse was caught," Holmbergh added. REUTERS

TripAdvisor tip: Try not to stay where the Clooneys are staying

It turns out entertaining George Clooney and Amal Alamuddin can be bad for business. A recent soiree thrown by the newlyweds at the Danesfield House hotel in Buckinghamshire, England, left other guests feeling a bit overlooked. Clooney's fabulous, swanky affair apparently necessitated renting out half the hotel's rooms. One guest posted to TripAdvisor, "Booked afternoon tea two months in advance for very special occasion for family, never got to go as was canceled one week beforehand due to exclusive event taking over the hotel. … Won't book with them again." Sounds like something out of "Downton Abbey," honestly.

Pure wizardry, I tell you.

Gwyneth on JLaw and Chris: Told ya so

So as you may have heard, Jennifer Lawrence and Chris Martin are no longer dating. And you know what? Gwyneth Paltrow totally saw this coming. In case anyone was wondering, "Gwyneth wasn't surprised by" the breakup, a source tells Star magazine. "She never thought the relationship was going to last because of their age difference." Easy, Paltrow. You don't want it to look like you're taking too much pleasure in your ex's relationship woes.

Don't define Katie Holmes by who she used to be married to Katie Holmes does not want to be defined by her divorce from Tom Cruise, you guys, so stop asking about it. "I don't want that moment in my life to define me, to be who I am. I don't want that to be what I'm known as," she tells People magazine. In fact, that's just the beginning of Holmes' batch of don'ts. "I don't have any fear now; I don't have a lot of rules for myself and I don't take myself that seriously." But what do you do, Katie? Aside from humor People magazine when they ask about the divorce you've made it clear you don't want to talk about? Although I can see that takes up a lot of your time.

Jake Gyllenhaal hunts for the good news stories in "Nightcrawler." / CHUCK ZLOTNICK

'Nightcrawler'

1 Jake Gyllenhaal is getting raves for his turn as a probably sociopathic thief who gets into the sometimes skeevy business of nighttime freelance news reporting.

'Before I Go to Sleep'

2 Nicole Kidman gets her very own "Memento," playing an amnesiac woman who suspects her husband (Colin Firth) might not be who he claims.

'Horns'

3 Daniel Radcliffe's post-"Potter" life continues with this horror-mystery, in which, after he's suspected of killing his girlfriend (Juno Temple) he wakes up one morning with devil horns.

'Saw'

4 No, you read this right: The original gore fest is back, mostly because this year there are no big horror franchises hitting theaters.

'Citizenfour'

5 Edward Snowden gets something better than a dry expositional documentary: a film shot inside the Hong Kong hotel room he was staying in as he changed the world.

'Listen Up Philip'

6 Philadelphia area-bred filmmaker Alex Ross Perry ("The Color Wheel") graduates to name actors, with Jason Schwartzman as a novelist who decides to become a nightmare, even to his girlfriend (Elisabeth Moss).

'White Bird in a Blizzard'

7 Shailene Woodley goes dark in this candy-colored drama from Gregg Araki ("Mysterious Skin"), playing a 1980s teen whose mom (Eva Green) vanishes without a trace.

Mathieu Amalric: Kind of 'Blue'

Interview. The actor (and Bond villain) considers himself a director first, and his latest is "The Blue Room."

Despite one of his biggest roles — as the ailing lead in "The Diving Bell and the Butterfly" — being largely off-screen, you probably recognize Mathieu Amalric. He's the Bond villain in "Quantum of Solace" and is a regular in the films of Arnaud Desplechin, including "Kings and Queen" and "A Christmas Tale." But he swears that acting is "the second part of my life." He is, in his eyes, a director first.

"Desplechin invented me as an actor," he says while promoting "The Blue Room," his most recent directed work. "I started behind the camera before I was in front of it. I do it because of friends. I love being in their worlds."

Amalric even won Best Director at Cannes for 2010's "On Tour." For his latest, he tackles a novel by French crime great Georges Simenon. But it doesn't play like a thriller: It's a fragmented memory piece that follows a man (Amalric) first in bed with his mistress (Stephanie Cleau, his real-life wife as well as his co-writer), then being questioned by authorities some time later. It doesn't let up and only gradually reveals its plot.

"It's one of the rare novels where Simenon has no linear storytelling," Amalric explains. "There are voices that seem to intrude during a love scene, and you understand somebody has been arrested and someone has been killed, but you don't know who. You discover things later but

Going 'Grand'

Amalric on Anderson

One reason Amalric does act is to see how other filmmakers work. That's one reason he had a small role in Wes Anderson's "The Grand Budapest Hotel." "I did that just to see him work. It's fascinating. He's meticulous in his preparation, but during the shooting he doesn't stop the camera between takes. So there's a sort of savage spirit that enters into those meticulous frames," he says. "That's why there's this incredibly energy, this ping-pong, this speed. The camera doesn't stop and you do [a take] 20 times in a row. The way he gets that energy between actors is he doesn't stop between takes. It's fascinating."

not completely."

The film also deals with his character under interrogation, trying to explain to detectives actions that might not make sense and might even incriminate him. "Having to put words on things is difficult. Society needs words on things, because if you don't have a name on a thing it might be contagious. Society would prefer that people do things for a specific reason. But it's not true."

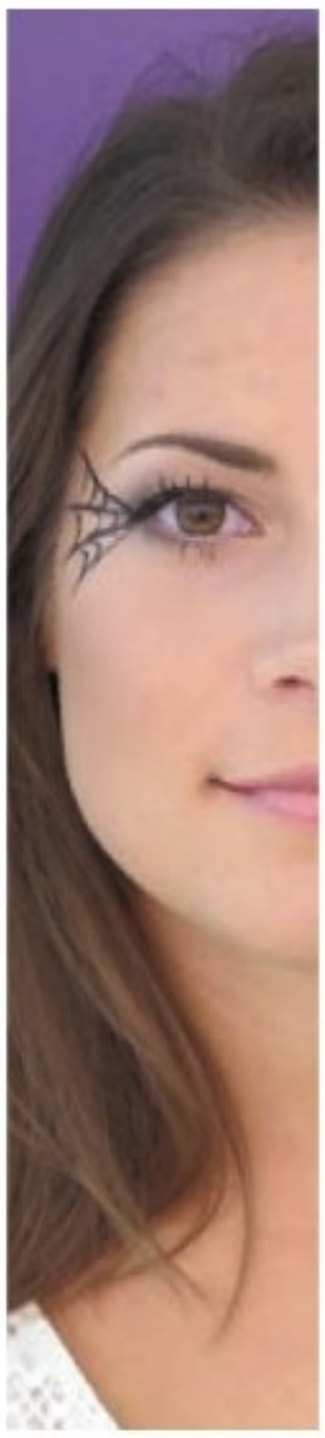
'Eye' Spook

1 Do your usual base layer by applying foundation, concealer, powder and bronzer. You can create a gradation of color, starting with a nude in the inner part of the eyelid, then a golden khaki in the middle and a dark glittery shade on the outer corner. As usual, the secret is in the blending, as you want to avoid any harsh line. Don't forget the mascara on the upper and bottom lashes.

2 Fill in your eyebrows with a pencil or a powder; always do your eyebrows because they frame the face and lend a more polished look.

3 Now, here's the Halloween-y touch of this look: The spider web is simply created with a black eyeliner pen. Draw four lines from the corner of the eye to the temples. Then draw some thin strokes to join the four lines. It's almost too easy.

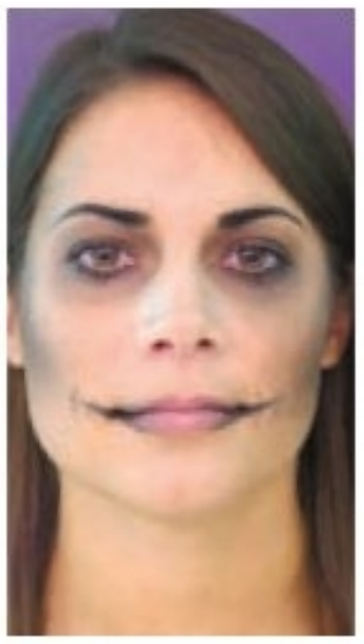
4 Since the eyes are quite dark, use a natural shade, such as a Dior nude gloss, to give the lips some volume.



Scary Skeleton

1 To achieve this look, do your usual base routine— foundation, concealer and powder. Using a creamy eyeliner, draw a line from your mouth to the middle of your cheeks. Start applying the liner on the inner lip and blend to create a shady effect. Then draw two lines on each side for the stitches.

2 Using a matte brown bronzer, create a hollow along the cheekbones and exaggerate the zombie effect using a black shade. You can use any black powder but use it on the top of the bronzer because it will be much easier to blend.



3 Start with your usual smoky eye and blend toward the eyebrow. Apply black powder along the bottom lash line, then blend to create dark circles. If you want it to look real, you need to use very little product and build and blend gradually. Don't put a lot on at one time, and apply some mascara on the bottom lash line but not on the top.

4 Using your black powder, fill in your eyebrows. You can go a bit heavy on this — the darker the better. For the final touch, apply a fair powder and a matte beige eyeshadow on your forehead and bridge of your nose — the same way you'd use a highlighter for contouring to look paler.

What does his costume mean?

Parties. Costumes can reveal as much as they conceal, says author.

Halloween is the one night of the year when it's perfectly acceptable to pretend you're someone you're not. But it turns out that our costumes reveal more about our personalities and dreams than we might realize.

Author Kelly Rossi has always loved Halloween. For years, the author of the new book "Dating the Wrong Men" has informally studied the meanings behind certain costumes and why we might gravitate toward them. "Your costume is an expression of yourself," she says. "No costume is 'wrong.'"

We asked her about the costumes we'll all probably see this weekend and what they might say about their wearers.

1 His costume is inspired by the news "Those people are on top of current events," Rossi says, "and they want everyone to know that."

2 He's his favorite superhero "They are living out that childhood fantasy of saving the world," she says, noting related studies she's read. "At times, it's to compensate for feeling inadequate — but not always."

3 He's dressed as an animal "When you get into animals, it's more about specific traits of those animals," says Rossi. "Lions signal strength; owls are wise."

4 He's a cop or firefighter "They desire to be taken more seriously," says Rossi.

5 He chooses a skimpy costume "It's people who put a lot of time into their body and want people to notice," she says.

LAKSHMI GANDHI
@LakshmiGandhi
lakshmi.gandhi@metro.us

Trick or treat

Beware of creeps

Rossi warns that Halloween can also reveal people's meaner sides. "Look out for people who are using their costume to do obnoxious things," she says. "Or they are using your costume to do obnoxious things." For example, avoid men who dress as a vampires just to bite women's necks or guys who leer at women in low-cut costumes.

The monster within

He gravitates toward scary costumes

"These people tend to express their fascination with horror. They like to watch scary movies."

In search of haunted spirits

Have a little milk with your whiskey at Tattooed Mom. / MARCI PRESTER

We're leaving the candy to the kiddies this Halloween as we hunt for the city's best grown-up treats. Several of Philadelphia's favorite haunts are serving up cocktails inspired by the season. JULIA WEST

1 The Pumpkin Bumpkin

Tattooed Mom
Ingredients: Pumpkin, Art in the Age Root, Guinness stout, Fireball whiskey, milk and nutmeg
Soulful sip: "We wanted to come up with a fun, current cocktail for the fall season," says Robert Perry, co-owner. "We wanted a local spirit and decided on Art in the Age Root because it has a great fall flavor. It's a little bit country, a little bit rock 'n' roll, and it has a very delicious soul."
530 South St., 215-238-9880, www.tattooedmomphilly.com

Headless

The Ichabod

Ingredients: Dark spiced rum, brown sugar, apple, nutmeg and Angostura bitters come together for a drink more autumnal than a pumpkin spice latte.

It's punchy: "The Ichabod is our take on holiday punch, like the ones kids go bobbing for apples in," says owner Ed Hackett. "Obviously their punch isn't spiked, but ours is and it's really good. It's got really nice notes of spice and we even put an apple in it – just a slice – if anyone wants to dive in."

Pub & Kitchen
1946 Lombard St.

2 Sympathy for the Devil

Bardot
Ingredients: Bulleit rye, Goslings dark rum, housemade spiced syrup, grenadine and Angostura bitters, served up in a martini glass and garnished with a red apple wheel floating on top
Spice it up: "Sympathy for the Devil is a perfect cocktail for the fall and winter months. It's a combination of sultry dark rum and rye with passionate winter spice that will indulge your senses," says Bardot bartender Scott Layne.
447 Poplar St., 267-639-4761, www.bardotcafe.com

3 Room 237

P.O.P.E.
Ingredients: Voyant Chai cream liqueur, Stoli vanilla vodka and cinnamon are shaken and strained over ice.
Jack Nicholson-approved: "The cocktail was chosen because we wanted to do something sweet, unique and seasonal," says manager and head bartender John Warner. "The combination of the cinnamon and the chai is reminiscent of spiced pumpkin pie. Vanilla vodka is like the whipped cream on top. The name, Room 237, is a reference to the haunted room in Stanley Kubrick's 'The Shining.'"
1501 E. Passyunk Ave., 215-755-5125, www.pubonpassyunkeast.com

Booze-less

Candy Corn Milkshake

Joe's Steaks + Soda Shop
Ingredients: Basically, it's your childhood in a cup. The key to this booze-free treat is the four scoops of housemade candy corn ice cream.
Treat, don't trick: "Each month we like to shake things up by offering seasonally themed milkshakes," says manager Stefani Mahoney. "The Candy Corn shake is the perfect way to get fun and festive this Halloween season."

Boo2! Halloween Concert and Dance Party

Friday, 8 p.m.
Temple Performing Arts Center
1837 N. Broad St.
$10 suggested donation
info@philajazzproject.org
www.philajazzproject.org
DJ Statick provides bookending sets for this concert by a 12-piece costumed band called Boo, led by trombonist Steve Tirpak and performing a range of covers in a variety of different styles. Wear you own costume — and dance!

PARTIES

Heaven and Hell Halloween Party

Friday, 8 p.m.
Lucky Strike Lounge and Lanes
1336 Chestnut St.
$5-$20, 21+, 215-545-2471
www.bowlluckystrike.com
Lots of bars have DJ sets and costume contests on Halloween and that's fine, but a few people get more creative, which is even better. Lucky Strike Lounge and Lanes has two themed floors for its Halloween bash, one "Heaven" and one "Hell." If you want to bowl, you'll have to go in on a group ticket.

Walk the Dead Carpet

Friday, 8 p.m.
Paddy Whacks Irish Sports Pub
150 South St.
$5-$20, 732-779-6884
www.paddywhackspub.com
At this Halloween party, you're encouraged to dress up as your favorite dead celebrity or TV/film character. As if to tempt you to toe the "too soon" line, the event poster shows the motley crew who've passed this year, from Shirley Temple to Joan Rivers to Casey Kasem. Will you dare? How can you not? Make it a tribute!

Halloween at the Haunted Hotel Monaco

Friday, 10 p.m.
433 Chestnut St.
$25-$30, 215 925-2889
www.stratuslounge.com
It's hell downstairs in the hotel and heaven up at the indoor/outdoor Stratus Rooftop Lounge. There's an open bar for the first hour and Halloween-themed cocktails all night.

Etherium

Saturday, 9 p.m.
Dorrance Hamilton Hall
320 S. Broad St.
$40-$50, 18+, etheriumball@gmail.com
etherium.ticketleap.com
Part dance show and part dance party, this event includes performances by Alchemy Dance Company and a set from DJ AnubisRex, who'll be spinning dance hits, dubstep and goth/industrial. And because this is Halloween weekend, of course there will be a costume contest — that is, if yours held up through the partying the night before.

THEATER

'War of the Worlds'

Thursday through Sunday
Black Box Theater, URBN Center Annex
3401 Filbert St.
$10-$15
cooptheater.westphal.drexel.edu
This performance recreates Orson Welles' notorious 1938 radio theater adaptation of "War of the Worlds." Welles' innovative conceit — presenting the alien invasion tale as a sequence of live news bulletins — caused a minor but legendary panic in the area, and secured his reputation as an edgy young genius. Makes you wonder how he'd do it today: A series of live tweets, perhaps? Come in costume on Halloween and get in for free.

MUSIC

Halloween Jack's Glamtasm Masquerade

Friday, 9:30 p.m.
FringeArts
140 N. Columbus Blvd.
$15-$20, 215-413-9006
www.fringearts.com
For the glam rockers of the '70s, pretty much every day was Halloween, or at the very least an excuse for outlandish costumes and makeup. This party with the band Candy Volcano (hard to imagine a better name) might bring back a little of that halcyon era, with its 25 members(!) performing supreme covers of some of the best glam acts.

ART

Berlin Abstractions: The Feast of Oktober in Contemporaries

Through Nov. 9
E-Moderne Gallerie
116 Arch St.
Free, 267-928-2123
www.e-modernegallerie.com
This is the first American show of German abstract artist Klaus-Peter Vellguth. His bright, boldly colored works utilize found imagery, whether it's fabric patterns, an image of a tin can, flowers or the works of the old Flemish masters, in a way that feels akin to how hip-hop producers create entirely new music from a host of samples.

MUSIC

Halloween Organ Extravaganza

Friday, 9:30 p.m.
Kimmel Center
300 S. Broad St.
$50, 215-893-1999
www.philorch.org
Hear — and feel — just how eerie an organ can sound as three organists play spine-tingling tunes, including "Funeral March of a Marionette" and "Danse Macabre," accompanied by spooky lighting and video projections. After the concert, lie down on the stage and feel the vibrations through your body as organist Peter Richard Conte plays the instrument's lowest, deepest notes.

Diagnosis, Madness: The Photographic Physiognomy of Hugh Welch Diamond

Thursday, 6 p.m.
Wagner Free Institute of Science
1700 W. Montgomery Ave.
Free, 215-763-6529
www.wagnerfreeinstitute.org
Penn professor Dr. Sharrona Pearl will discuss and share the work of Victorian doctor Hugh Welch Diamond, who attempted to use photography for both therapeutic and research work with the mentally ill. He believed in physiognomy, which asserts a correlation between facial features and character traits. It may be seen as pseudoscience now, but his photographs haunt and fascinate.

MOVIES

'Phantom of the Opera'

Friday, 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.
Irvine Auditorium
3401 Spruce St.
Free
www.upenn.edu
It's a Halloween tradition at Penn to screen this silent 1925 horror classic with a live organ accompaniment. Lon Chaney's Phantom is one of the great cinematic freaks. Chaney himself designed the hideous makeup to create one of the founding fathers of cinematic bogeymen. The climactic reveal of his disfigured face was said to have terrified moviegoers so much that some fainted! W DINARO

THEATER

'The Haunting at Hill House'

Through Saturday
Christ Church Neighborhood House
20 N. American St.
$15-25, 215-278-9504
www.brainspunktheater.com
BrainSpunk Theater presents this adaptation of the classic Shirley Jackson thriller, a masterpiece of psychological horror. It begins with a ghost hunter and his companions taking up residence in the titular house, which is said to be haunted, but Jackson's genius was to create ambiguity about the hauntings.

GIANT PUPPETS, DANCING SKELETONS, COSTUMED SPIRITS AND MARIACHIS TO FILL SOUTH STREET FOR THE DAY OF THE DEAD FESTIVAL AND PARADE ON SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 2

Philadelphia, PA -- South Street Headhouse District announces the resurrection of the Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) Festival and Parade, on Sunday, November 2, 2014. After a ten year hiatus, this popular celebration returns to honor departed loved ones while celebrating the circle of life. The unique procession will feature spectacular giant puppets, dancing skeletons, traditional Mexican music, strolling costumed spirits, Frida Kahlo look-alikes and a funeral hearse. The parade route begins at Philadelphia's Magic Gardens (1020 South Street) starting at 1:45pm and ends on the 400 block with food, drink, art and family fun from 2:00pm to 7:00pm. The parade and street festival are free, with food and drink pay-as-you-go. For more information, visit www.southstreet.com, follow @officialsouthst on Twitter or call (215) 413-3713.

"After all these years, we are proud to bring this beloved festival and parade back to Philadelphia," said Executive Director Michael Harris. "It will be a day to celebrate those we have lost, contemplate our existence and reaffirm our ties with our ancestors."

Children and adults are encouraged to come in costume and share food, art, music and fun with their extended community, both living and dead. Starting at 1:30pm, participants can gather at Philadelphia's Magic Gardens. While waiting, pay homage to deceased family members and friends by writing a chalk message in front of the specially created "ofrenda," or altar offering up gifts to the dead. The parade kicks off at 1:45pm and features spectacular giant puppets, dancing skeletons, traditional Mexican music, strolling costumed spirits, Frida Kahlo look-alikes and a funeral hearse (provided courtesy of McGuinness Funeral Home).

Once the procession hits the 400 block, the festival comes to life with music, song and performances from the following:

• Mariachi Pedro Villaseñor	(1:45pm to 2:30pm)
• Los Straitjackets	(2:45pm to 3:30pm)
• Fuego Nuevo	(3:30pm)
• Tonantzin Coatlicue	(3:45pm to 4:15pm)
• Grupo de Danza Nuevo Mexico	(4:30pm to 5:00pm)
• Grupo Cenzontle	(5:15pm to 5:45pm)
• Ensemble de Folklore de la Escuela de Música del Estado de Hidalgo	(6:00pm to 7:00pm)

The world's number one instrumental combo and national touring act, Los Straitjackets, will perform a special preview prior to their show at World Café Live that night where they will perform with the legendary Deke Dickerson in promotion of their new album Los Straitjackets: Deke Dickerson Sings the Instrumental Hits. For tickets and more information, visit tickets.worldcafelive.com

Additionally, participants can enjoy face painting, art demonstrations with Joel Garcia from the Eyes Gallery, Frido Kahlo look-alike contest hosted by the Eyes Gallery, skull tile making, and food and drink from Baron Von Schwein, Copabanana, Farm Truck, Las Bugambilias, Tuk Tuk Real and Woolly Mammoth. All festival activities will take place on the 400 block, which will be closed to traffic.

Leading up to the Day of the Dead, stop by the Headhouse Square Fountain this week to visit an ofrenda hosted by Brujo de la Mancha (artist, musician, and traditional Aztec dancer). This altar will serve as a place for the community to place objects to honor their loved ones and will include a set of pre-Columbian sculptures provided by Nazbalam, Cascada del Jaguar.

The Day of the Dead Festival and Parade is presented by South Street Headhouse District with support from the Consulate of Mexico in Philadelphia, the Mexican Cultural Center, and in part by grant funding from the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation, as part of its Knight Art Challenge. Guidance is being provided by original organizers, Isaiah and Julia Zagar of Philadelphia's Magic Gardens and Eyes Galley, and Bill Curry of Copabanana.

All activities are free and open to the public. Food and drink are pay-as-you-go. Beer and cocktails are available for those 21 and up, with valid identification.

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Don't judge others. You will receive valuable information from an unlikely source. A person who is often disagreeable will have answers.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Don't offer to help a stranger with a good sob story. Allowing someone to take advantage of you will lead to regret and loss.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Your steady approach will be difficult to maintain. If you make a snap decision, let your family know.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Be cautious when sharing personal secrets. Private information has a way of becoming public knowledge.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Get involved with events close to your heart. The more you believe in something, the more enthusiasm you will offer.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Think before you speak. If you are feeling overly sensitive, you may take something the wrong way. Listen and refrain from making a lofty response.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Surround yourself with people who are encouraging, and be the same. The value of close relationships cannot be denied.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Touch up your surroundings. Renovations will add value to your property, or at the very least make you feel good.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. This is not the best time to get into a deep conversation. Plan some solitary activity where you can collect your thoughts before you speak your mind.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Go the extra mile at work. Dependable people are not always easy to find, and your efforts will be noticed.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. An outgoing someone will take you by surprise. Don't be too quick to think this person has all the answers. If something sounds too good to be true, it's probably false.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Little problems can grow out of proportion quickly. Electrical concerns should not be taken lightly.

Nurse's happiness doesn't trump national health

If Kaci Hickox feels her human rights were violated, then she is evidently ignorant and needs to read the Constitution. The good nurse's right to the pursuit of happiness does not apply to threatening the health and safety of others, even if unintentionally or inadvertently, as her fellow citizens in Maine are letting her know. Her exceedingly arrogant, partisan and opportunistic whining, with the support of NYC mayor Bill De Blasio, Sen. Chuck Schumer, Jon Stewart, etc., was getting tiresome.

Ebola fears are new to the U.S. and we need to learn as we go. Irresponsible medical personnel are not helping.

Un-PC?

I was about to refer to the period of unusually warm weather we are presently having as "Indian summer" when I realized this term might not be politically correct and someone might be offended. Do Metro readers think this term is OK, or should we just call it a "sudden autumn warm period"?

For Flyers, Emery has been team's best so far

NHL. Goaltender Ray Emery is rolling in net for the Flyers after winning his third straight game on Tuesday.

Ray Emery had 38 saves in his most recent win, a 3-2 overtime victory against the Kings. / GETTY IMAGES

The Flyers' Plan B has become Plan A — the backup is now the starter. At least for the time being.

Ray Emery, re-signed somewhat reluctantly during the offseason, is off to a blazing start in the first month of the season and has at least temporarily unseated Steve Mason as the Flyers' starting netminder.

Emery has won three straight games — against Pittsburgh, Detroit and L.A. — and stopped 95 out of 102 shots during the stretch.

"He's playing unbelievable," Wayne Simmonds said. "Even when we are not giving him support, he is still giving us chances to win games. It's great when you can rely on both goalies and know that they are going to give us their best effort every night."

As Mason is winless in five games and searching for the confidence he played with in the final four games of last year's playoff series with the Rangers, Emery has opened the year 4-0-1 with a 2.44 goals against and .924 save percentage.

"It feels good but I take it game by game," Emery said. "I enjoy being in there and it's nice to contribute and get some points as well."

The Flyers have six points in the last three games, thanks primarily to Emery.

What troubled Emery last season was his lack of speed going east and west in goal, but this season Emery has been noticeably quicker pipe-to-pipe.

"The body feels better and when you hear criticism you want to work on that area," Emery said. "I just try to continue to work on those things."

The Flyers travel to Tampa to take on the Lightning Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Eagles need turnovers

Last year the Eagles had 19 interceptions defensively. So far in 2014, they have just three. But Chip Kelly isn't concerned with that. "I think they come in bunches, something like sacks," Kelly said. "I think overall I'm pleased with our defense, and we'll continue to do it."

Mac attack

Maclin is the real deal

Playing in a contract year following a serious injury, Jeremy Maclin's standing among NFL wide receivers was up in the air coming into 2014.

But after his 187- yard performance against the Cardinals on Sunday, Maclin is a superstar. Maclin's in the top 10 in the NFL in receiving yards and leads the NFC in touchdowns with six.

"I've liked every day since we've had Mac here," Chip Kelly said.

Maclin is a complete package, mixing route running with speed and even run protection.

"He's a complete receiver because ... he's not a selective participant when it comes to the run game," Kelly said. "I think he's been a real physical blocker for us on the edge."

His 32 career receiving touchdowns tie him with DeSean Jackson and Ben Hawkins for eighth in Birds history. EVAN MACY

Robertson having year for the ages

NCAA. Villanova quarterback John Robertson is thrilling fans on the gridiron.

Robertson leads the high-powered Villanova offense, which averages more than 41 points per game. / VILLANOVA ATHLETICS

As freshmen, Villanova roommates John Robertson and Kevin Monangai talked all the time about the day they'd make it big.

It turns out they may have been selling themselves short.

While the undersize Monangai's 170 yards on 16 carries — including an 81-yard touchdown run in Saturday's 48-28 win over Morgan State — moved him into fourth on the school's all-time rushing list with 2,640 yards, his old roomie is in the midst of a historic season.

Running for 99 yards and two scores while throwing for three more in the Wildcats' (7-1) seventh straight victory, Robertson continues to pile up the numbers. Not only has he accounted for 30 touchdowns — 25 through the air while throwing just one interception — he's drawn accolades from all corners.

Robertson is in the heart of the conversation for the Walter Payton Award, presented to the Outstanding Player in the FCS. And while he'd prefer to downplay that and credit the rest of his teammates, his success comes as no surprise to his old roommate.

"What you're seeing now is just what we always talked about since we were 18 and 19 [years old]," said Monangai. "We knew what we wanted to accomplish here. This year we're having pretty much that reality coming true."

Robertson remembers those days, too.

"We'd talk about it all the time because we weren't playing," recalled Robertson. "We'd say, 'This is gonna be our team eventually.' Our whole freshman class, we talked about how we wanted to be remembered. Ever since then we've just been working hard to make our plan a reality."

With Monangai's old roommate at the helm, Villanova can play with anybody. This season they're proving they knew what they were talking about all along.

History-making

Is John Robertson the best quarterback in Villanova football history? Andy Talley thinks he could be.

- "He's really on his way, to me, being the best quarterback we've ever had — and we've had some good ones. He has all the tools. He's a force unto himself. He can turn a game around with his feet, with his arm and he's developed into a leader. He makes us go."
- Robertson is nearing school records with 2,948 rushing yards, 39 rushing touchdowns and 52 passing touchdowns.

No. 1

Broncos (6-1)

The Broncos head to Foxboro with the same swagger they owned 11 months ago. Denver had just one loss heading into last November's game in New England, but left with two. This is a better Broncos team in 2014, but the Patriots also look improved.

No. 2

Cardinals (6-1)

The Cardinals already had a sparkling record heading into last week. Now Arizona has a signature win.

No. 3

Eagles (5-2)

Jeremy Maclin caught 12 balls for 187 yards and two touchdowns — and they still couldn't come up with a win against Arizona.

No. 4

Patriots (6-2)

In our Oct. 1 rankings, the Pats couldn't even crack the top 20. Now Gronk is 100 percent and scarier than ever.

No. 5

Seahawks (4-3)

Had the Seahawks not won it all last season, they would likely be in the 14-17 range.

No. 6

Chargers (5-3)

The home loss to Kansas City in Week 7 hurt. There was no chance the Chargers were going to win in Denver on a short week.

No. 7

Packers (5-3)

We have been far too kind to the Packers this year and this week's No. 6 ranking keeps that trend alive.

No. 8

Colts (5-3)

What exactly happened to the Indy defense in Pittsburgh? Ben Roethlisberger had the game of his life.

No. 9

49ers (4-3)

The 49ers were on their bye last week, and since no team in this range stepped up, they get the benefit of the doubt.

No. 10

Cowboys (6-2)

The chickens finally came home to roost, here. The Cowboys could very well be a playoff team, but clam down on title talk.

No. 11

Lions (6-2)

This could very well be the worst 6-2 team of all time. Zero points in the first half against lowly Atlanta?

No. 12

Bengals (4-2-1)

We'll say this: Marvin Lewis appears to be Joe Flacco's kryptonite. But thankfully A.J. Green looks to be nearing a return.

No. 13

Ravens (5-3)

The Baltimore defense is doing its job. The 16.4 points per game it allows is second in the league, just behind the Lions.

No. 14

Bills (5-3)

Their win in the Meadowlands was about as easy as it gets when it comes to road victories.

No. 15

Saints (3-4)

It's the same old story for New Orleans: unbeatable at home, horrid on the road. They're at Carolina this weekend.

Help us explore pathways to diabetes management

Do You Have Type 2 Diabetes and High Blood Pressure?

We are enrolling adult volunteers now

If you have type 2 diabetes and high blood pressure, and are between 18 and 74 years of age, find out if you qualify for a clinical research study of an investigational oral diabetes medication. The study will evaluate whether this medication may also lower blood pressure.

You may be eligible if:

- You are taking oral medication to treat your blood pressure, and your blood pressure is not at target levels

  AND

- You are taking oral medication to treat your type 2 diabetes, and your blood sugar is not at target levels

If eligible to participate, you will be seen by a study doctor and receive study-related testing and medication at no cost. If enrolled, you may be reimbursed for parking and travel expenses.
